A butterfly Celebration Wall is being created as a fundraiser for the Cole Ohrt Walk Strong Organization. If you would like to honor, memorialize or in any other way to contribute to the Butterfly wall please fill out the form below.

I watched in agony as the small creature struggled to free himself from the golden shield of protection. Unbearable. I released him from the bondage. With bright-eyed expectation, I watched and waited for the lovely imago to flourish, but not he sat. With a bewildered heart, I asked, "Why aren't you darting amongst the fragrant flowers and mighty trees my exquisite butterfly?" He looked at me in despair, "I cannot fly. I cannot lift my wings. In your zeal to free me from my struggle, you have made me weak."

The struggle is real, the triumph glorious!

Like a butterfly we are trapped in our chrysalis of trials. The struggle to break free of the golden shield strengthens us, prepares us, enables us to emerge prepared for the journey that lies ahead. Premature freedom from the work makes us weak, ill-prepared and unable to take flight and soar. Indeed, it is overwhelming to watch a loved one struggle, but at times, struggle they must. For in our fight, we move from disabled to able, weak to strong, passive to persistent, from who we think we are to who God made us for.
